

Wednesday

Dearest,

The only time for a short note, but I wanted to get it to you in case I'm unable to phone you tomorrow, or at any time before Sat.

The draft for the f46 came tonight & I propose to draw it out tomorrow. On Sat. I'll pay for the divans etc. (some fun, eh kid?), and that'll leave me with - er, leave see er-r-r - £11 approx. Now, is there any other little Knick Knack that you'd like me to get whilst I have solid cash in my possession & before it's placed in the bank. Come to think of it - there's no need to put it in the bank at all - we shall most certainly need a little cash in the next few months & I think I'd better keep it in hand.

Yup - that's what I'll do. I'll keep it by me & then next Saturday after next Saturday that is, i.e., the Saturday that you're off duty in the afternoon of - where! - we'll go looking for a carpet. By that time, of course, we should have another f45 in the bank & a dog's tooth.

Well, I warned you it was to be a short note so bye-bye

I'm deliciously happy,
& in love with you,

Lu
