My own darling hubby,

Sweetheart I had the most wonderful weekend didn't you? Everything was so perfect and we were both so happy together. I think we will always be that don't you darling?

My heart is so full angel, I am finding it difficult to express my feelings coherently on paper. I want you near so I can whisper in your ear how wonderfully good I feel right now. I am missing the glorious thrill I have felt at being able to turn over in the middle of the night and snuggle down in my hubby's arms. Darling I love you so! I think we have been missing all this happiness for so long! Never mind we can make up for any temporary loneliness when we are together at the weekends eh, my sweet?

Darling, darling, darling, love you love you, love you - ooh - soooo.

I keep looking at my lovely rings to remind me of that wonderful moment in church when you put it on my finger forever. Remember? ... as if we could ever forget! All my life I shall keep in my memory the picture of that sailor man of mine waiting at the altar for his bride to join him.
You looked so sweet, I'm glad that little shake in your voice betrayed the fact that you were moved by the ceremony. Remember, the confetti, and carrying me over the threshold, and hugging me as though you'd never let me go, and all the sweet people, and yet inside the feeling that we were only killing time till we could be alone? Oooh sweet.

You've made me wonder fully, gloriously happy, angel, I'll never stop loving you and trying to make you happy,

Your own love,
and wife,

Clare

BACK TO EARTH

- PS. — The carpet come over the weekend and is now down!! Though it will need some expert laying.
- PPS. (1) I am now Mrs Westaway on all my credentials and papers and whatnot. Yippeee.
- (2) I have put in application for my gratuity.
- (3) Arranged for your quarterly pay slip to be sent to your wife - thats me!!
- (4) Seen the Income Tax man - and he thinks I may get a rebate in April - and the Mavy allowance is not taxable, so we should save a little

If we make our wonderful, glorious happy, and I'll never stop loving you and
trying to make you happy I'll never love
