

Darling,

What a glorious spot of weather!! Wind in the Sou' west, Sun shining, not a cloud in the sky.

Gee, we'll have a wonderful time this weekend. I don't know where we're going but you and the Country and some sunshine - what more could a girl wish for?

Clip gave me your message this morning, so I shall wait in for a call from my darling tonight. If you haven't fixed up at the Osterley, I have a hotel all lined up at Chertsey on the Thames, either place sounds grand.

I haven't phoned Tim yet, so I must make a note to do so some time this afternoon. 'Fraid I haven't a spare evening to go over and cuddle Susan Anne this week so I expect they will be at Glenties next time I visit them. I spent a half hour in St James Park when I had finished lunch - it was simply glorious. The Park I mean not the lunch.

And how is my Sweetie-pie?
Let's hope the Admiral has found a job for you out on the river this week - I know how you'd love that.

Cully is feeling a bit blue this week as her hubby is soon coming on embarkation leave. When you think that they won't see one another for two or three years, it brings home the awfulness.
Gee, I don't know how I'd get on for all that time without my angel!! Doesn't bear thinking of. At least the Navy comes home occasionally, I hope. I hope

By the way, they hope to throw a party on March 31st, that's a Wednesday. Do you think you could manage to come up to town that evening? I shall be on fire-watch, so with any luck I could get permission to stay out until about 11.0 pm.

Well darling I think that's about all the news until you ring, so I'll love you & leave you, I do, you know.
(love you, I mean).

Clare
