

The Office.
Saturday.

Honey-mine,

Yes, I'm on fire-watch again! I volunteered to do it (with a proviso that should my ever-loving hubby turn up they could go to blazes - figuratively speaking of course!)

Gee whiz I was glad to hear from you this morn'g!!
Y'know I was really beginning to worry. What with reading about all the M.T.B. clashes & what-not. Into the bargain I've been on my toes all week for that telegram or phone call which meant that you were on your way. Yippeee!!

So the chances of seeing me another next weekend or bright eh angel? Well they'd better be. Cos one young woman I know is missing her man Something chronic!! Sniff.

I've been turning up at the office this week every day looking like something off a Hollywood set. And all in your honor. Just think what you are missing.

Incidentally you'll be glad to learn that the lovely bed now sports pillows!!

3 Yes, actually! I ordered them on Monday & Joan phoned me this morning to hear the latest news concerning leave & at the same time announced that they had arrived. So we should sleep comfortably. Goo-goo. or words to that effect.

So you've moved off once again eh? Or so I gathered from your cryptogram - or whatever it was. Furthermore I gather that there is another move in view. I shall begin to imagine I married a nomad. Do you think you will manage to settle down in one spot with me, some day honey? You'd better or I'll have to buy a ball & chain.

By the way, I shall not be on duty on Wednesday next, So don't waste your hard-earned Coppers on phone calls.

I should have liked to see that Irving Berlin show "This is the Army" which is running for a fortnight in the West End. But I understand that tickets were not to be had for love nor money, apparently all the elite in London were there along with thousands of doughboys!

5 I meant to crochet some more of the Shawl tonight, but dashed if I haven't forgotten to bring it with me - So when I have finished this epistle I shall try to get started on "Absolom, absolom." Eve thinks it will take me about a year to read. Some book!

I guess you'll find this letter rather trying to read, but I expect you will persevere - if you love me, and I rather gather that you do. Ho hum. And that's how it should be!

So I am to expect you towards the end of the week.
Well! I'll be waiting.

As I said before - if you can tell me beforehand what train it is I'll meet you. I suppose it will be Watebo as usual?

Will write something more tomorrow, perhaps. Till then I'll be thinking of you, all the time,

Write when you can later, even if it has to be about boast-pressures,

I love you

Clare
