

The Flat.
Sunday.

My own key,

Today has been a very happy one for me, and so I'll start in to tell you all about it.

Well, while I was eating my breakfast this morning I couldn't help noticing a chap who kept smiling at me. Every time I looked up there would be that grin, and so thinking he was lonely I asked him if he'd care to join me. However I guess he couldn't have been very hungry cos he didn't eat a thing. Just kept right on watching me. So I occasionally winked at him & between mouthfuls blew a kiss, and so breakfast was quite a jolly meal.

I don't think I ought to tell you that I was in bed cos you'll think me quite immoral.

But you can't guess who the handsome hero was! Dopey.

Well the rest of the morning was spent in household duties.

But after lunch I washed and brushed up and prepared to visit the Westaway Castle. I had received a card from mum on Saturday inviting me down, tho' I had made up my mind to go anyway.

Meriel & Edgar & Philip were over for the afternoon (Edgar having had another 9 days leave!! lucky people!!). and they were all looking bonny.

Philip now runs around, talks a little, has nearly all his teeth and a real boyish haircut.

4 He just brings over with energy, never sits still for a minute and laughs a lot. He's got dimples and big blue eyes & I reckon will be a real Westy Smasheroo in a few years time. Muriel has to have eyes in the back of her neck, cos he opens the door and walks out when he wants to.

I noticed the way he turned the handle & tried the key,
and examined everything that he picked up. He's got the old mechanical brain alright.

By the way, Edgar has gone

5

up me, he's now a Flight
Sgt. and wears a crown above
his stripes.

Funny when I arrived I
was told to dump my things in the front room, and when I walked in there was Edgar in true Wesley style faked out on the sofa. But gosh, he looked so like you for a moment that my heart just missed a beat,
and the old longing was there.

But it's no good, one has to show a brave face to the world.

6 I console myself with the thought that this time last year we were getting all the breaks.

Nowadays I've got my eyes fixed on tomorrow, with the feeling that any day you may turn up. It gives one a marvellous feeling of confidence, for no matter how many tomorrows may come there'll still be others, and by the law of equality our lucky day must turn up. -mustn't it. Sweet?

Your Cousin Charlie from Canada is now in England with 2 The Canadian Army, and has written to your mum, and intends to pay a visit in the near future. It would be rather good if your leaves coincided wouldn't it?

Jim rang me yesterday and wanted to hear all the news. He made me promise that when you do come on leave we would have a drink altogether to wish a happy new year & Xmas to all the rest. Apparently, Gus does not now expect to get home until the week before Xmas.

8/ Our anniversary in two weeks!!
What a day! It would be heaven to spend it together. Like you havey, I've not bought a present yet, I was hoping that we could go shopping together.
But as it is not to be, I think I'll look around Town. next week.

Your Saturday letter caused me many a chuckle, angel, and if that reflected your mood, then I'm glad, cos you sounded as top of the world. And that's where my darling should always be.

9 Me? Well, so far I have managed (finger on wood) to avoid the wild fire that seemed to arrive with the fog, and am in the pink. Meriel thinks my face looks fatter, but I think it was the hair do - roll all round with high wave in front. (Sands like an M.T.B. on patrol, doesn't it?).

One of the Westminster Hospital students told me the other day that I had a cute figure. (Which quite embarrassed me, seein' as how I hardly knew the chap).

And glances are still being cast at the old pins, so I guess they are still in shape. That O.K., honey? Am I still the same girl? Glad you married me?

All I can say is, I may change physically from time to time, but my heart and my thoughts are always the same.

I love you.

Love
xxx+xx

P.S. I'll send off your woolies on Tuesday.

P.P.S. That nutty sounds wonderful, and so please send it if poss. Gannet?
