Tuesday.

Dearest,

There's quite a bit of snow down here which decides you definitely one's inclination to go ashore or stay aboard. Altho I wanted to write my letters tonight I also felt just in the mood for a flick, but right now the only way to get to town is by sledge + cog, I write. Don't get the idea sweetheart that you're playing second fiddle to Lana Turner, I'd just as soon see Frank Buck - anyway even when I do see the film besides I still put you in their place + there doesn't seem to be any incongruity anywhere, (if you're thinking of Zam Pitts I can only say you're making things very difficult).

What a wonderful weekend!
We say that every time, don't we?
That only goes to prove that everything in the garden is lovely when we get together. If only we could have those weekends in our own home - ah me. You can say that you like shortblossington but that little nest-was one big thrill to me.

I go on a short course next week - in the Hornet. The course, itself is of no news value but it does mean that another 6 weeks will elapse before they start pushing us about.

It also means that the chances of another seven days are very good. In fact the office is already seeing what can be done in an orderly manner.
By the way, as I inspected & suggested, the venue has again been changed - quite in the opposite direction - & the buzzes have restarted along the new lines. What it'll be next I don't know - it's certain that one of the buzzes is true because by now we've circumvented the world. We have been told officially that we're in clover wherever we go, & I hope that's not navy flannel.

With the news this-a-way I suppose everybody's got the End of the war feeling. I must admit that we got it too. "Over by the Spring" - if they don't say it every paper means it + the idea's infectious. I really dunno what to think but this I do know - if it's over before we go abroad the situation will be very different & it's possible that the draft might be cancelled. So we'd better hope O'Doe does his stuff.

I'll give you later in the week darling, & give you the low down on Sunday - I think it'll be alright. That week-end visit keeps me alive all the week. Do you know I'm in love with you
fe.
